

PUT CAR CHECK AT TOP OF PRE-VACATION LIST

A good inexpensive insurance policy is a pre-trip inspection performed by your automotive technician. It takes only one failed component to compromise your safety and ruin your vacation, so before the first suitcase is loaded check out the following slate.

Belts/Hoses/Cooling System - These are the number one cause of summer breakdowns. Have your technician help you determine the mileage on your belts and hoses. Over 4 years or 50,000 miles merits some extra consideration.

Fluids - In most cars there are 7 fluids that should be inspected on a regular bases, especially before a trip. They include: antifreeze/coolant, transmission fluid, engine oil, brake fluid, washer fluid, power steering fluid and gasoline, of course. Several of these have filters that should also be checked. They include gas, engine oil and transmission.

Battery/Charging System - A dead battery is one of the most common reasons for a breakdown. Hot weather is tough on a battery and the alternator so make sure they're in tip-top shape.

Tires and Alignment - Tires are the only thing connecting your car to the road. Rotating your tires at regular intervals promotes longer tread life while proper inflation increases both safety and fuel economy. A poorly aligned vehicle can accelerate tire wear, decrease handling and lower gas mileage.

Brakes - Brake failure ranks high among motorists' greatest fears; oddly enough, it's also a maintenance item on which motorists tend to procrastinate. Have brakes checked prior to a trip, at regular intervals, and whenever they begin sounding or begin feeling abnormal.

So before heading to the beach, mountains, or the theme park, consider that you and your family are only as safe as your vehicle. Don't fail to give it the attention that will bring it up to this important task.

Friendly and efficient

I've been going to Premier for over two years now. Chris and Patrick are so nice and take great care of my 2005 Pacifica. They explain anything that needs to be done and I usually get the car back the same day. I rely on them to keep me safely on the road.

Reliable work done.

They got my truck into the shop the same day and did a very thorough inspection. They told me everything that was going on with the truck and quoted me a fair price. The work they did made my truck run better and more efficiently. Also, my car was ready to pick up in a short amount of time. I'll definitely be back for maintenance.

Now Offering GDI Service

Some newer vehicles now have a fuel delivery system called Gas Direct Injection. GDI systems inject the fuel directly into the cylinders bypassing the intake valves in the engine. This can lead to carbon building up on the valves which can lower gas mileage and power. Our GDI service not only cleans the intake valves it will also clean the spark plugs, combustion chamber and other parts of your engine.

Car manufacturers are recommending GDI service every 20,000 to 30,000 miles.
